Customer Problem Statement :

Creating a Customer Problem Statement

Understanding the real needs, challenges, and pain points of users. It allows teams to view the problem from the user's perspective and focus on what truly matters. In the case of the Laptop Request Catalog Item project, this statement helped identify that employees face delays and frustration due to a manual, inefficient laptop request process. By clearly outlining who the user is, what they are trying to achieve, what obstacles they face, and how those obstacles affect them emotionally, the team could design a targeted solution using ServiceNow. This ensured that the final implementation — a dynamic, user-friendly catalog item — directly addressed user frustrations and enhanced their experience, ultimately improving request efficiency and satisfaction.
